HEBER—Doorway delivery of mail to Heber residents began Monday with the inauguration of the city-wide delivery system.

Able to qualify under post office department regulations since 1941 for delivery service, beginning of the delivery has been delayed because of wartime conditions plus some local lagging in seeking it.

Heber post office receipts in 1945 totaled $18,904, compared with federal requirements of $10,000 for door delivery service.

Jay O. Johnson and John R. Wright, both veterans, have been given temporary appointments as foot carriers. Bert Lindsay, working in the post office under an emergency appointment, has been named a mounted carrier.

All residences within four blocks east and west of Main street and four blocks north and south of Center street will receive two deliveries daily plus parcel delivery. The remainder of the city will be served once daily by a carrier with all classes of mail.

Carriers are scheduled to leave the post office at 9 a.m. each week day with first class mail and daily papers. In the afternoon they will go out again with first class mail from eastern Utah.

Mounted carrier will make parcel delivery to the center of the city each afternoon.
